Milner's passion for cars started at a very young age watching his father's race team, Tom Milner Racing and later PTG, race everything from IMSA GTP cars to NASCAR. Following a start in go-karts, Milner was chosen in 2004 as one of six North American drivers to be a Formula BMW USA Junior driver. He made his sports car debut the same season in Grand-Am and won at Fontana Speedway with Kelly Collins for his father's team. Milner took pole there and two races earlier at VIR. Won three times in 2005 Grand-Am GT class and finished sixth in the championship.

Milner moved to American Le Mans Series in 2006 as part of Panoz Team PTG program in GT2. He also ran for his father's team in 2008 with full-season run for Rahal-Letterman Racing in between. Switched back to Rahal-Letterman with introduction of BMW M3 in 2009 with three runner-up finishes. Added three more the following season before moving to Corvette Racing in 2010.

Outside of racing, Milner is an avid fan of Washington DC-area sports - most notably the NFL's Redskins and NHL's Capitals. He enjoys playing sports and staying active with various activities including soccer, lacrosse and anything that goes fast. He also has interests in photography and architecture. Milner also added significant input to the development of Project Cars 2 from Mad Studios.
